

CITY MATTERS.

Mr. W. A. Ross, with Johnson & Sons, of this city, has sold his interest in his new patent tobacco cutter to the P. G. Sorg Co. of Middletown, Ohio.

James Sweeney and his bar-tender have been held in $1,000 each, at South Charleston, for selling liquor to a minor. The case comes up at next term of court.

At a charity ball in Washington, D. C., last evening the daughter of Hon. Samuel Shellabarger, who is a Springfield lady, appeared in a costume of white muslin, with baby waist and blue ribbons.

A careful count just made in connection with an enumeration of business houses in the city shows a total of 163 saloons within our city limits; an increase of 15 to 20 since the repeal of the Scott law, and these of the worst class.

The Stylus, Wittenberg college society organ, announces the retirement, this week, of Chas. J. Pretzman as business manager. Mr. Pretzman leaves in a few days for Antwerp, on a European tour. His successor on the Stylus is C. G. Heckert.

At last night's weekly meeting of the Building and Loan Association ten new shares of stock were taken. The newly-elected Board of Directors will hold their first meeting next Monday evening, to complete the organization for the year.

At a meeting last night of Burns festival committees it was decided to hold the banquet and accompanying festivities in honor of the poet's birth, at the St. James Hotel, Monday evening January 26. Tickets are now in the hands of members of the committee at $1.25 each. It was decided to engage a regular quadrille band for the supper and dancing. There will be plenty of singing of Scotch airs, but few set speeches, anybody having anything to say to be allowed a reasonable time to say it.

In the account of the fire yesterday morning on the northwest corner of Main and Shaffer streets, a mistake was made as to Chief Simpson's opinion about its origin. We had it that the Chief thought it caught fire from the stove in Bishop Henderson on's barber-shop. But this opinion of the Chief's was with reference to another fire (Sunday morning's) and another barber-shop. The information got mixed in the reporter's mind. Bishop Henderson's barber-shop did not originate Monday morning's fire, because Bishop is too careful a man to allow such a thing to happen. We regret this middle of the wrong barber-shop with the wrong fire.

A very large number of tickets have been sold already for Mrs. Brandom's charity concert, January 22. Everybody seems to be going. She has secured, at considerable expense, some of the best artists in the country to assist her, and it will be the finest musical entertainment of the season. We would advise those wishing to attend the concert to procure tickets this week of some one of the many persons selling them, for there will be a "jam" at Pierce's and Wilbur's ticket office next Monday morning to get reserves. There is every evidence that the opera house will be "packed," and for once this winter the card "standing room only" will be displayed.

The zoological department at the Factory street engine house is minus one of its chief attractions through the death, from suffocation, of the pet coon, a remarkably tame, well-behaved and handsome little animal, which has been with the firemen a long time. Captain Kooz made a post-mortem examination this morning, and is confident that cooney came to his death from excessive formation of fat about the throat and breathing apparatus, literally shutting off his wind. The food the lively little fellow got and the life he led was so different from that to which he was born, in the woods, he didn't take kindly to it, in the long run. Like a good many men, he couldn't stand prosperity.

Yesterday afternoon about five o'clock, a young German named Charles Metz was the victim of an accident, by which he will probably lose his right arm. Metz is a molder by trade, and works at the Engine and Threshing Works. He lives at No. 102 North Race street. At the time mentioned the men in the foundry were "pouring off," and several ladies of molten iron were sitting around on the floor. Metz, while walking, suddenly stumbled and fell. His right arm went right into a pot of the red-hot liquid up to the elbow, burning the flesh off to the bone. He also slipped into it in his face and on the left arm. He was taken to Drs. Russell and McLaughlin's office, where his injuries were attended to. His arm will probably have to be amputated.

National Bank Directors.
The five National banks of the city held the annual election for directors this afternoon, with the following result:
FIRST NATIONAL.—N. F. Stone, Wm. Rodgers, J. H. Thomas, B. H. Warder, Ross Mitchell.
SECOND NATIONAL.—Wm. Foss, Oliver S. Kelly, Amos Whiteley, W. A. Scott, Wm. W. Wilson.
LAGODA NATIONAL.—John Howell, J. Warren Keiter, Geo. Spence, Am. Winger, D. P. Jefferies.
MAD RIVER NATIONAL.—C. H. Bacon, Jas. S. Goode, L. W. Haughey, Thos. F. McGrew, Jacob Seitz.
SPRINGFIELD NATIONAL.—John Foss, Conrad Nagle, Robert Johnson, P. P. Mast, Wm. Diehl.

For Burglary.
The particulars were given last week of a burglary at Kearns's grocery, corner Clifton street and Linden avenue. The burglars were discovered and fired at by Kearns. The police suspected Harry Franklin of being one of the parties in the affair and have been looking for him since. This afternoon officer Ward came across his man, arrested and took him before Kearns, who identified him as the man he saw and fired at. The patrol wagon was called, and Franklin taken to jail and locked up, charged with burglary. When it was remarked that the grocery-man recognized him, Harry took his cigar from his mouth and asked: "He says he does, but does he?" Franklin is an old bird, though a young man.

It is the testimony of all who expect to attend the entertainment to be given by the

ECONOMY IN STEAM POWER.

A Step Forward.

The consumption and cost of fuel for steam power is one of the great, and, we may add, difficult, financial problems of the present age. England is already anxiously calculating the time when her coal mines will be exhausted, at the present rate of consumption. In the United States, according to the Census Reporter of 1880, it appears that our merchant steam craft consumed nearly four million tons for that year, while the fuel for our locomotives cost $32,436,470. We have not been able to obtain the statistics of fuel used in manufactures for that year, but find the number of engines employed to have been 56,483, with a horse-power of 2,185,458. The coal used in these establishments in 1870 was 25,327,213 tons, and with the known increase, could not have been less in 1880 than thirty million tons.

Of the enormous amounts of fuel consumed in the marine department, two illustrations may be given. The steamer Oregon burns 337 tons of coal per day. Her average time for crossing the Atlantic is seven days: 337x7=2,359 tons. The same being required for the return passage, gives 2,359x2=4,718 tons consumed each trip. The steamer Rome, 304 tons per day, gives 304x7=2,128; 2,128x2=4,256 tons each trip.

These facts are astounding. Yet, as our country grows, manufactures multiply. New railroads will be built, and traffic constantly increased. Hence will arise a vastly increased demand for steam power. Can the increased cost be afforded? Engineers, manufacturers and railroad officials have been, and are, looking at this problem. It is believed that a solution can and will be obtained. It now seems that this solution is at hand. The Triple Thermic Motor, invented by Mr. W. S. Colwell, of Pittsburg, Pa., is an apparatus by which 75 to 82 per cent. of fuel is saved. It has been thoroughly tested in practical work during a period of nearly two years. The inventor and the managers of the enterprise have purposely refrained from advertising it. So many experiments in that line have been announced only to prove failures, that they have preferred to carry the invention out of the field of experiment and demonstration beyond a doubt its utility and value, before calling the attention of the public to it. This has been done in the most thorough manner.

A company has recently been incorporated under the laws of the State of New York, located at No. 501 Fifth avenue, New York City. They are setting up engines in some of the Eastern States, and receiving orders from other sections. Some of their engines will soon be in operation in Ohio.

This new motor does not necessitate any change in the machinery of the engines now in common use, except in the cylinder. The invention pertains to the boiler and apparatus connected therewith. Evidently we are on the eve of a revolution in the use of steam power. From the annual report of the engineer of the City Water Works, made last April, it will be seen that 752 tons of coal were consumed by the engines during the year, at a cost of $1,955. The Triple Thermic Motor would save three-fourths of this cost, or $1,466. The same is true of every factory in this city, so that it will be seen that it means a saving of thousands annually to our manufacturers. The use of this new motor in New England signifies a saving of over $17,000,000 every year in the use of stationary engines only. These statements are marvelous, we admit; but, as the railroad has, during the present century, revolutionized the mode of travel and transportation, so the Triple Thermic Motor is destined to revolutionize the use of steam power. Mr. R. L. Colwell, of Lowell, Mass., is in the city, at the Arcade Hotel, representing this enterprise.

Locomotive Cab in a Blaze.
No. 111 engine, pulling the P. & C. St. L. freight due here at 9:30 a. m., came in from Xenia this forenoon with the inside of the cab very much charred and the glass in the windows broken or cracked. On the run over from Richmond to Xenia last night a large can of coal oil kept in one corner of the cab, next the boiler, exploded and the oil took fire, burning the woodwork as above stated and destroying a steam-gauge. Neither the fireman nor the engineer who made the run with the engine from Xenia here, was aboard when the explosion occurred and were unable to say whether or not either of those in charge at that time was injured. From the looks of things it must have been tolerably hot in there for a few minutes. The engineer was Ben. Still. It is supposed the locomotive was standing motionless when the accident happened, as otherwise it wouldn't have been so speedy a job putting the fire out. As it was no great damage was done.

Death of Mrs. Samuel Barnett.
Mary, wife of Samuel Barnett, near Urbana, died this morning at 3 o'clock. Notice of funeral will be given later.

Amusements.
The "Two Bad Men," to be given at the Grand, Thursday evening, will be a lively affair. The Akron Beacon speaks of the performance as a "Fusillade of Fun," and says the play shows great originality, and that the company—Gill and Arthur's—is one of the best on the road.

TONY TRAMPS.

The Chain Gang Strike on Account of Reduced Rations, and Refuse to Work.

The prisoners at the city work-house struck early this afternoon, with two exceptions, and refused to work. The whole gang was accordingly marched off to the station house and locked up in their cells. The trouble is because of a movement of the Council police committee to reduce expenses at the station house, which have been on the gradual increase, within reasonable limits. The bill of fare has, to that end, been cut down to a basis on a par with that of hundreds of families in the city, which doesn't suit the epicurean ideas of the geological geentry. Hence the kick. Orders have been given to take the gang out every morning and keep them out all day, work or no work, on the rations provided under the new regime, and this will be done. It isn't proposed to starve the men, but such luxuries as porterhouse steaks and Alderney cream for their coffee do not appear on the new menu de calaboose.

Every soloist and every member of the chorus in 5-and-40 Blackbirds is requested to be in attendance this p. m. at Arcade parlors.

The death is announced of Mrs. Samuel Barnett, of near Urbana, who has relations in this city.

Hiring China.

"It takes lots of chinaware for these swell receptions," said a china dealer to the Star reporter, the other day, as the porter passed out with a basketful of plain white china.

"Yes, I suppose you sell considerable," said the scribe.
"Sell! Well, yes, we sell some; but then we stopped and smiled curiously. 'Well, it isn't all sold that goes out. It comes back in most cases. That is, what isn't broken comes back. That's why it's plain white. Haven't you noticed that all the china at these receptions is plain white? Well, that's the reason—it comes back.' Then he put his mouth close to the scribe's ear and whispered:

"What! For all these large receptions? Cabinet ministers too? You don't say that they—"
"Yes, all of them nearly hire their china for such occasions. You see at some receptions, such as those given by the cabinet officers, for instance, as supreme judges and the like, there are four or five hundred guests present. All have to be served. Now, you don't expect them to keep a china store. No, no, they hire their service. That's going to—, but I guess not. I won't tell you where. If you go there, you may eat out of that plate, and to-morrow night you may eat from the same somewhere else. See?"

"Don't it get broken?"
"Yes, receptions break china very fast, but we get paid for all that, and charge a percentage on the value for use." There is hardly a reception held in Washington where there is not hired china on the table. It's cheaper to hire than to own. Some people put away their light fancy china on such occasions, because it is expensive to have broken and hard to replace. Others don't have it. What we hire is nice china, but, as I said, it is plain white. We seldom hire any other kind, and when we do it is never the same set twice."

"Why is that?" asked the scribe.
"Well, no, I don't think I guess not. Now, you go to A's to-night; you see a set of china with peculiar Japanese figures on it. You go to B's next evening. More Japanese figures. Again, C's chocolate is served in Japanese. All the rage. Ah! Japanese figures are just the thing in china here. You mention it. Mrs. Beitz here. She draws you to one side; puts her fingers to her lips in a sly fashion and whispers close into your ear: 'Hired.' Now, you see, that won't do. If they are all alike they must be white—plain white. Then, too, it is easier to replace when broken. Yes, all the first-class stores have china to hire."—Washington Star.

What to Leave Out.

It is quite impossible to read everything, to go everywhere, to see everybody, for all of which opportunities offer, without losing in this rush of life the power to take a distinct impression. Now to keep one's self in rapport with select and sympathetic currents, to be responsive to the finer and nobler influences, is to hold the key of the situation. It is often the book we do not read, the entertainment at which we do not assist, the individual we do not see, that does the most real good. Life becomes deteriorated and miscellaneous if it is not subjected to the severe scrutiny of selection. A matter of which it is easier to preach than practice. Overpossession is the fatal endowment of modern life.—Lillian Whiting.

A note on distilled water used for drinking purposes was recently read before the Paris Academy by M. A. Bureau de Villeneuve, in which the author argues the importance of the use of distilled water, and that the price might be greatly reduced by obtaining it from steam engines at work at mills. He considers it is neither unpalatable nor difficult to digest, that it generally contains a sufficient quantity of air, and that the absence of calcareous salts is rather an advantage than a drawback.

A Prospective Calico Boom.

Henry M. Stanley, the explorer, has been calculating what the effect on the calico trade would be, if the people of the Congo, who are now clothed chiefly in sunshine can be induced to wear American and English print. He says that if every inhabitant of the Congo basin should have one Sunday dress every year, more than 300,000,000 yards of cotton cloth or calico would be required; if two Sunday and four everyday dresses were used the enormous total of 3,800,000,000 yards of the approximate value of $80,000,000 would be required. He estimated that a trade of $130,000,000 annually could be secured, and said that it was the easiest matter in the world to induce Africans to wear cotton, when the basin of the Congo would be more profitable to England than even India.

A correspondent of the New York Times writes: "Vassar girls have a peculiar phraseology of their own as I noticed when I went to their annual 'Phil' Friday evening by invitation of a tempting 'cousin.' In addition to the ordinary slang of girlhood, their vocabulary is still further extended. I gazed wonderingly, and rather vacuously perhaps when my cousin said: 'Look at that cow. What do you think of its face?' I could not see any cow, but just an extremely pretty girl with some transparent, insouciant, stuffy stuff around her neck. Later I found that in the Vassar girl's classification all males are 'men' and all females 'cows' with the usual intensive adjective strung before."

Just starting on their wedding trip: Young wife—"I am afraid, dear, that our trip to Montreal and Quebec will be very expensive." Young husband—"It may be a trifle expensive, but just think what a delightful time we will have!" Just ending the wedding trip: Young wife—"What a delightful time we have had, dear!" Young husband—"Yes, we have had a pleasant enough time, but just think what an awful expense it has been!"—New York Sun.
